Hello,

It's my opinion that there is a gap in current licensing. Businesses can operate an e-commerce website under all of the following conditions are still eligible.

- Only take payment in USD.
- Do not indicate they take payment in USD.
- Offer no local support.
- Ship all merchandise from the United States.
- Their only real local presence is a trademark which allows them to have a .com.au domain.

To me, this is an ingenuine use of the domain and undermines the purpose for which is is designed - to flag an entity with a substantial Australian operation or attachment.

Thanks and kind regards,
Andrew Davies
