Thank you for sharing auDA's draft 2026–30 strategy and consultation questions.

From a NSW Department of Education perspective, we see clear benefit in engaging with this process and potentially endorsing the strategic direction outlined by auDA. There is strong alignment with our focus areas, including cybersecurity, digital equity, digital identity, and the broader participation of underrepresented communities in Australia's digital ecosystem.

Salient points from my perspective as follows:

The strategy's emphasis on trust, inclusion, and critical infrastructure resilience aligns with our education system's digital enablement and safeguarding priorities.

Proposed innovations such as online identity services linked to .au domains and AI-enabled DNS governance offer promising synergies with our own digital transformation initiatives.

There may be opportunities for the Department to contribute to auDA's multi-stakeholder forums and internet governance activities, especially given our leadership in safe and ethical use of digital and AI technologies in education.
