1. Does auDA's Draft 2026–30 Strategy establish a clear strategic direction for the organisation?

Yes. I like the Trust, Innovation, Impact & Capability framework. I believe the focus of reaching out to university , students and early career professionals as very important. Teaching and learning about good govance for all Australians. I still believe that we need to deepen our auDA membership numbers.

2. Will auDA's Draft 2026–30 Strategy support it to deliver on the proposed strategic purpose and vision by 2030? The purpose of the meeting is to

Yes I do. I especially like the fact that curoosity is mentioned as part of our values. I believe that is significant to indicate a learning organisation that can deal with change appropriately . auDA has come along way in being a knowledge centre but must keep going on this path and help disseminate that information for all Australians. How can auDA help those less fortunate? I know that auDA is looking for those opportunities but must continue.

Our IGF (Netthing/ auDA Conference) is one important tool and opportunity for everyone inside and outside

3. Does auDA's Draft 2026–30 Strategy effectively position auDA to meet the operational challenges and capitalise on the opportunities it faces over 2025–30?

Yes it does but we need to keep analysing , learning and publishing what we know. We also keep being involved in the national and international goverance networks pushing for an open free internet that works for humanities good.

Key areas of focus are to help safe guard individuals and communities data and information as well as facilitating good business practise for small / medium businesses.
